Jews In Bulgaria Hand Over Goods, Cash, Property

Thousands of Bulgarian Jews demonstrated in the streets of Sofia against the recent expulsion order. According to one report they formed up into marching order in the Jewish quarter near Klementina Street, and then started on their protest parade through the streets. The police intervened in order to break up the procession, and to "protect several of the more enraged Jews" against the "legitimate indignation" of Bulgarian citizens, according to the Nazis. One report speaks of protest demonstrations having taken place "in various parts of the town."

Non-Jewish demonstrations in support of the Jews also took place. There were 25,000 Jews in Sofia. All who had failed to leave within the three-day limit were to be deported to Poland.

The first thousand left on the evening of May 25 for Karnobat, a town in Southern Bulgaria, and were followed by a second trainload the following morning. They were to be kept in public buildings in Karnobat and other provincial towns "until adequate concentration camps are available." They were allowed to take sixty pounds of luggage, but no money.

Authoritative Bulgarian circles state that there is no intention of sending abroad those Jews who are Bulgarian citizens. Only those were to be sent to Poland who tried to evade statutory regulations. The Minister of the Interior stated that Jews were to be allowed to emigrate, but not to Palestine or Turkey.

Jews having their own businesses, shops, or individual farms would liquidate them by a certain date, official liquidators have been [illegible] Jewish owners, would draw up the exact lists of property, cash, and goods, and take over the keys from Jewish property owners. In

Nazis In Norway Reject Christian And Jewish Faith

The assertion that Christianity and Nazism are irreconcilable appeared in the Norwegian Nazi newspaper, Ragnarock, which said:

"We Nazis reject Christianity because we reject Judaism, and have acknowledged that both are inextricable allies. As a consequence both are capable of doing anything against us.

"We reject Christianity because we consider the Bible in its entirety a Jewish delusion, created in order to break the earthly will for life and the immortal belief of all Nordic peoples in their own part in things divine."

A fresh wave of opposition to the French clergy was reported by the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet, which said the differences between the Catholic Church and the Vichy Government were more and more acute "and recent signs hint at a coming crisis."

Rising opposition against the Roman Catholic clergy and Christianity in general by the Nazi parties in the occupied countries was noted in European press dispatches reported to the U.S. Office of War Information.

The most outspoken criticism appeared in Storm, the publication of the Netherland Nazi party, which attacked the Catholic clergy in the Netherlands as the "prime instigator" of the general strike last May in protest against the return of Netherland soldiers to the status of prisoners of war.

Describing the strike as the [illegible] Dossier said the strikers were "mostly sheep of the Roman Catholic Church, who incited our people until they stood opposite German firing squads."

SALONIKA JEWS DEPORTED TO POLAND, ROBBED FIRST

Three thousand Jewish families have been deported from Salonika to Poland, according to information received in Cairo. The report adds that the Jews' entire property has been confiscated.

Salonika students recently demonstrated against Nazi anti-Jewish and anti-Greek orders. The demonstrators carried a yellow flag.

The pro-Nazi press in Yugoslavia says that bands of Greek and Bulgarian guerrillas blew up railway lines in order to obstruct the passage of a train conveying a large number of Bulgarian and Greek Jewish deportees to Poland. Twelve of the guerrillas are said to have been captured by the Nazis and sentenced to death.

Palestine Goods Supply Armies

Demonstrating their fighting ability in all branches of the service, particularly in the Army and in the Air Force, the Jewish youth of Palestine have recently been given the opportunity of enlisting in large numbers in the British Royal Navy. At the beginning of May, 705 Palestinian Jewish boys had been accepted. Six of them have received commissions and many more have become Petty Officers. Jewish boys enlisting in the navy receive their preparatory training in vocational schools under the auspices of the Jewish Maritime League. Thus, in the Maritime School of Haifa, a number have already completed their preparatory training, says the report.

A batch of 14 American citizens residing in Palestine were the first to be inducted into the U.S. Army recently, when they were sworn in by the Adjutant of the Levant Service Command, Lieutenant Joseph Nelson. The men were sent to a training camp and fitted out with U.S. uniforms.

The New York Times carried the following cable dispatch from its Jerusalem correspondent:

"Presaging a considerable saving in shipping space from the United States and Great Britain, it was announced that Palestine's growing industries would soon engage in the manufacture of a variety of essential articles for export to other Middle Eastern countries. The statement came from George Ritchie Sandford, new chairman of the Palestine War Supply Board.

"Mr. Sandford said recent Cairo meetings of the Council of the Middle East supply center had discussed arrangements to utilize Palestine's surplus capacity and the council was formulating a detailed scheme of production, including provision of the requisite raw materials. He also announced that the Local scientific advisory committee, on which the principal scientific institutions of Palestine are represented, was serving also as adviser to the Middle East supply center.

"He said a war service board had been formed to rationalize the flow of labor for civil and military needs, including enlistment in the uniformed forces. Loans have been issued by the Palestine Administration for intensive cultivation of existing and new areas and development of dairying and poultry farming for military and civilian needs.

"Many new industries have been established in the past year, including industrial chemicals, glass containers, cardboard and paper, crockery and household utensils and electric and scientific instruments, supplying the British Empire and the United States and Allied armies with millions of Pounds worth of locally produced goods."

Saul Tschernichowsky, Hebrew poet, was given a reception at a military training camp in Palestine when he appeared before an audience of 1,000 Jewish officers, enlisted men and women in the British Army. Tschernichowsky, who ranks second in Baltik in the brilliance of his work, read some of his early creations.

TO BE COLLEGE OF SURGEONS PRESIDENT

Dr. A. A. Berg, consulting surgeon at Mount Sinai and Montefiore Hospitals, was chosen president-elect of the International College of Surgeons to take office as president in 1945, at the annual meeting of the college at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York. Dr. Rafael Calderon Guardia, President of Costa Rica, was elected a vice-president. Four other Latin American physicians, one from Cairo, Egypt, and one from the United States, were also elected vice presidents.

An extract from tissues of adult animals has been found effective in the healing of serious wounds and sores, many of them of long duration, that had not responded to any other method of treatment, it was reported in a paper prepared by Dr. Felix Mandl of the Surgery Department, Hadassah University Hospital, Jerusalem, Palestine, who had been invited to represent the Hebrew University in Palestine.

Diamond Workers Aid War Effort

Scattered throughout England there are today a few thousand rather forlorn civilians from occupied lands in Europe who are trying to carry on their traditional jobs far from home. Most of them are earning more now than they ever dreamed possible, yet they are the first to affirm the truth of the saying that money is not everything, writes David Anderman from London to the New York Times.

The speed with which their [illegible] ago made it impossible for more than a handful of refugees to gain sanctuary in Britain. The majority of those who did come were Belgians and Dutch. No account is taken here of the men serving in the merchant fleet of these countries and Norway.

Diamond workers from Antwerp and Amsterdam and fishermen from Ostend to Walcheren compose the main body of those who, either by accident or design, have found themselves stranded on this island.

Take the plight of the diamond workers who enjoyed a monopoly before the war and now are witnessing dispersal of their trade to a dozen parts of the world. There were 20,000 of them employed in Antwerp before the German invasion; today there are a scant 700 holding the fort in London.

When it became certain that the enemy was going to invade Belgium, two million workers, including those in the diamond business, began a trek to France on instructions from their government. At least 2,000 Belgian fishermen were intercepted by the British Navy and diverted to this country. The diamond men went on to Cognac in western France, their pockets bulging with precious stones. A plan to reestablish the industry there came to naught when the enemy swept across France almost as fast as the retiring Belgians.

The first batch, 300 of them, succeeded in getting to Britain in the early summer of 1940. And since then many more have come, but it is said that the exodus has ended. The Belgian Government authorities assert that the Germans have had no luck in rounding up the remainder, and this for two reasons. First, it is hard to pick out a diamond expert who is able to conceal a hoard worth a fortune in a biscuit tin and, second, because virtually all these workers are Jews, who have ample justification for distrusting the Nazis.

Here in London and nearby counties polishers and cutters of gems and industrial diamonds are making an invaluable contribution to the Allied war effort. When they turn their thoughts to return to the homeland they are sharing one of the great perplexities of their government. The diamond trade was an important source of foreign exchange before the war and the authorities are wondering how it can be protected now or recaptured later.

Men are being trained to work with diamonds in Britain, the United States, Canada, South Africa, Palestine and the Belgian

War Enriches Palestine Peasants And Farmers

One of the remarkable effects of the war on Palestine has been the amazing extent to which agricultural prosperity has developed among a formerly indigent Arab peasantry as well as among the Jewish farmers. The secret is truck farming and fruit growing.

With great numbers of British and Allied troops in the country and food imports cut to a large degree through shipping considerations, the produce grown locally must fill the gap and consequently there has been an astounding rise in staple-commodity prices.

The retail price index for food on the Jewish markets stands around 290 and on the Arab markets over 300, compared with the average of 100 in August, 1939.

The Arab peasants particularly are getting prices for vegetables and fruit at which their imaginations would once have boggled. An Arab peasant who has a hundred acres of rocky soil near Bethlehem where, with his father and four brothers, he barely eked out a living before the war growing grapes and vegetables, has been offered $6,000 for grapes that brought only $600 before the war. They are not very big grapes, either.

This young peasant, who is only 23 years old, made a wise investment with his surplus cash. He just paid off the dowry on his fourth wife. His four spouses work in the fields and orchard, besides doing household chores while he serves the family as commercial traveller, going to the city markets and getting the best prices for their truck and vegetables.

The phenomenal boom in agricultural prices has not sent the thrifty Arab peasantry off on a spending spree, however.

One villager near Jerusalem who inherited his father's and grandfather's indebtedness totaling $10,000 has fully paid off that heritage of debt with the accompanying interest and also carefully put away under the family hearthstone—Arab peasants for the most part distrust modern banking institutions—a literal crock of gold for post war investment.

Vegetables have risen as much as 200 per cent F.O.B. One result is that the United States Levant Service depot, somewhere along the Palestinian coast, has laid out a hundred-acre truck farm to grow

Warsaw Message Appeals To World Conscience

A stirring account of the last days of the Warsaw ghetto was given in the B.B.C.'s "London Calling Europe" transmission. "The battle," said the broadcast, will go down to history as one of the most tragic and yet one of the most heroic chapters of the war." The ghetto, it declared, became a citadel of the oppressed. "The vanquished have gained this victory, and the men who stood and fought have overcome in their impotence the cruel power of the Third Reich."

The last chapter of the heroic defence of the Warsaw ghetto was told in two messages received through the underground channels of the Polish Government from the Central Committee of the Jewish Labour Movement and the Jewish National Committee in Poland, addressed to Dr. I. Schwarzbart and the late S. Zygielbojm.

"This is the ninth day that the ghetto fights back," said the message of April 28. "S.S. and Wehrmacht formations are besieging the ghetto. Artillery and flame-throwers are being used, and aeroplanes shower high explosives and incendiary bombs on the 40,000 Jews who still remain in the ghetto. The Germans mine and blast blocks of houses wherever there is resistance. The ghetto is burning, and the smoke covers the whole city of Warsaw. Men, women, and children who are not burnt alive are being murdered en masse.

"The Jews fight back fanatically and have killed and wounded about 1,000 of the enemy," added the message. "They have [illegible] factories and stores of [illegible] population admires the heroism of the Jewish defence, while the Germans react to it with shame and rage. A proclamation to the people of Warsaw was issued by the Jewish fighting organisations.

"Only the might of the United Nations," the message concluded, "can offer immediate effective help. On behalf of millions of Jews murdered and burned alive, on behalf of the defenders and all of us

Objects To Footnote In Soldiers' Bibles

The Jewish Peoples Committee For United Action against Fascism and Anti-Semitism addressed communications to President Roosevelt, Attorney-General Biddle, The Most Reverend Thomas E. Molloy, Bishop of Brooklyn, and Chaplain General Monseigneur Arnold concerning the version of the New Testament circulated among the Roman Catholic soldiers, which contained the anti-Semitic footnote: "The Jews are the synagogue of Satan. The true synagogue is the Christian Church."

Praising the action of Monseigneur Arnold in stopping the further printing and distribution of this version, it urged him and the President to make every effort to withdraw the 350,000 copies now in circulation. Because the New Testament in question appeared under the imprimatur of Bishop Molloy, the Jewish Peoples Committee asked him to aid in the task of withdrawing the version in circulation and to address a communication to the Roman Catholics in the armed forces explaining why such a step was necessary.

Pointing out the harmful effects of such a footnote among the men of different faiths in U.S. armed forces and that the footnote is the type of poisonous propaganda distributed by the Nazis and their henchmen, the Jewish Peoples Committee called upon the Attorney-General "to investigate and uncover the person or persons responsible for this anti-American act and to prosecute those responsible."

Because it feels that this instance of anti-Semitism is symptomatic of a campaign much more widespread, a campaign which manifests itself in defiled synagogues, discrimination in hiring, discrimination in some sections of the armed forces and widespread anti-Semitism in army camps, the Jewish Peoples Committee sponsored a recent New York City Conference.

Would Finance Jewish Settlement In Australia

Public opinion in Australia is generally favorable to establishment of a Jewish settlement in the East Kimberly district, according to a three-year survey made by Dr. Isaac Steinberg, organizing secretary of the Freeland League for Jewish Colonization.

Dr. Steinberg said in Sydney that while the Western Australia Government had given its consent to the proposed settlement, the Federal Government had not yet made a decision, owing to the stress of war. He believed, however, that Federal approval would come in time.

Dr. Steinberg pointed out that colonization, if permitted, would be on non-political lines. The settlement would be permanent and the members would become Australian citizens. At the beginning the administration would be Australian, while the financing, until the settlement became self-supporting, would be done by Jewish authorities in London. Dr. Steinberg has suggested that the original colonists should number about 1,000 vigorous young men and women. They would be the pioneers.

P/O Benny Yanover, of Hamilton, was a member of the crew of a plane which shot down two German planes and helped destroy another in the air over Tunisia during the closing days of that campaign. P/O Yanover was on a sweep with his squadron when they ran into a formation of Messerschmitt 109's in the Tunis area. During the ensuing dogfight, two of the German planes were shot down, and they found themselves out of ammunition. A large group of Messerschmitts chased the plane all over Tunis but it returned safely to the squadron. The Officer Commanding of the group of planes was promoted to Squadron Leader and awarded the D.F.C.

Squadron Leader Harry Shapiro, J7224, R.C.A.F., of Montreal, became the most highly decorated Canadian Jewish flier when he added the bar to his previously won D.F.C. By his cheerful courage, determination and devotion to duty, Sqdn. Ldr. Shapiro has set a splendid example to the other members of his squadron." Shapiro was awarded the D.F.C. on Nov. 6, 1942, after he completed 30 flights over enemy territory. On that occasion he went over the assigned target with incendiaries to set fires which lit the way for succeeding waves of Allied planes. His D.F.C. citation stated: "Flying Officer Shapiro, as navigator, co-ordinates his work with his wireless operator, captain, and bomb-aimer with great success, and as a result on many occasions has returned with excellent photographs of the target." Sqdn. Ldr. Shapiro, 27, is a native of Montreal, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Shapiro, 5675 Queen Mary Road. About Jewish "Asides"

I often think it is a pity that the "asides" heard at some of our communal gatherings [illegible] conference was held at [illegible] animated discussion took place as to the alleged differences which had sprung up between the Zionist Federation and the Board of Deputies. There was a country Jewish storekeeper present, — an old and valiant Zionist warhorse. He was evidently not aware of all the implications of the so-called "controversy," but appeared to be annoyed with everybody concerned. Turning to his fellow-delegates, he murmured: "How the Zionist Federation cannot kill Zionism in South Africa."

At a recent educational conference, one of the delegates referred to an optimistic Melamed who fitted in twenty-five one-hour lessons a day. "How can you do it when there are only 24 hours?" he was asked. "One can always squeeze in an extra one!" was the reply.

At a recent conference in London many delegates spoke — and spoke! Dr. Cecil Roth, the well-known champion of the cause of history, apparently got bored with the trend of a certain argument. He is reported to have leaned over to a friend and suggested the publication of a new work: "The Book of Jewish After-Thoughts!"

An incident at a recent conference in this country was amusing. A delegate announced that he would speak in mamma loshen. The chairman heartily agreed to this proposal. The delegate then began in the following manner: "Mr. chairman, ladies and gentlemen, Es git mir the greatest pleasure zu address you auf this occasion. Mit reference zu de resolution welcher is gepassed geforren today. . . ." The laughter of the conference delegates put an end to this specific Yiddish episode!

As Canada was not represented at the Bermuda Conference, it can, therefore, act vigorously and independently. He summarized the representation which Congress had made to the Government earlier in writing and the exchange of correspondence with Prime Minister King and stated that there is a great opportunity before Canada to lead the rest of the world by offering asylum to the Jews. He specifically suggested the admission of Jewish refugee children now in Spain and Portugal and immigration permits for Yugoslavian Jews now refugees in Italy, and guarantees to Spain, Portugal, and Turkey that Canada will admit after the war a number of refugees to whom these countries will now give asylum for the duration. He also urged that the interned refugees now in Canada be released immediately.

Goes To Palestine From South Africa, Once Of Montreal

After a period of almost twenty years of service, David Dainow retired as editor of the Zionist Record to settle in Palestine.

Son of the late Rabbi Israel Dainow, a well-known London "Maggid" Mr. Dainow was educated in England, and went to Canada, where he was appointed director of Talmud Torah in Montreal, later going to New York, where he joined the staff of the American Jewish Congress.

After the last war and the peace settlement that followed it, the American Joint Distribution Committee sent a special mission to Poland to administer relief to the large number of Jews there whom the war had impoverished, and to rescue children from the pogrom areas in the Ukraine. Mr. Dainow was appointed as the sole English officer of that mission.

Mr. Dainow assisted the late Isaac Ochberg in the task of bringing from the Ukraine the party of orphaned children who went to South Africa, where they were adopted into a large number of Jewish families. Mr. Ochberg invited Mr. Dainow to follow up his work in South Africa as director of the Cape Jewish Orphanage, where many of the rescued children from the Ukraine were housed.

50,000 copies of the pamphlet "Jews and the Sea" recounting the story of Jewish participation in seafaring, past and present, and the recent developments in maritime education in Palestine will be distributed by the Chaplain's Office of the Navy to Jewish midshipmen, Wrejectrets and Coast Guardsmen on the occasion of the Merchant Marine Day.

Jewish Population Of Canada Declined

The last ten years showed the smallest rate increase of Jewish population in the history of Canada, according to a study of the official statements by the Canadian Jewish Congress. The Jewish population of Canada actually declined from 1.5% of the total population in 1931 to 1.47% in 1941.

The proportion of the Jewish to the total population of all origins has increased in the decade from 1931 to 1941 in four out of the nine Canadian provinces and has barely held its own in two of the remaining five provinces, while the Jewish population has actually decreased numerically during the same period in three of the nine provinces.

These are some of the highlights of a statistical study of the Jewish population of Canada prepared for the Bureau of Social and Economic Research of the Canadian Jewish Congress by the noted economist and statistician, Louis Rosenberg, based upon the official figures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics compiled in 1941.

Preliminary figures of the total Jewish population of Canada in 1941 show them in number 170,120 as compared with 156,726 in 1931. The Jewish population has increased 8.54% during the decade since 1931, while the total population of all origins has increased by 10.33% during the same period.

The Jewish population has increased from 62,383 in 1931 to 69,676 in 1941 in Ontario; from 60,187 in 1931 to 66,277 in 1941 in Quebec; from 2,747 to 3,360 in British Columbia; from 2,046 to 2,225 in Nova Scotia; from 3,722 to 4,652 in Alberta, and from 20 to 25 in Prince Edward Island.

On the other hand the Jewish population has decreased from 1,262 in 1931 to 1,228 in 1941 in New Brunswick, from 19,341 to 18,879 in Manitoba; and from 4,291 to 4,149 in Saskatchewan.

In the province of Quebec the proportion of the Jewish to the total population has decreased from 2.09% in 1931 to 1.99% in 1941, while in Ontario it has increased slightly from 1.81% in 1931 to 1.94% in 1941. Manitoba is the only province in Canada in which Jews form more than two percent of the total population. In the provinces of Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia Jews form less than one percent of the total population.

Of the total Jewish population of Canada in 1941, males of all ages numbered 85,843 whilst females of all ages numbered 84,277. There was a larger proportion of males to females among the total population of all origins in Canada in 1941 than among the Jewish population. The report of the Canadian Jewish Congress is one of a series of "Studies in Canadian Jewish Statistics" prepared by Louis Rosenberg and published by the Bureau of Social and Economic Research of the Canadian Jewish Congress, which also published Mr. Rosenberg's standard volume on "Canada's Jews, A Social And Economic Study Of The Jews In Canada."

the case of mixed Jewish-Aryan concerns, the Jewish partner must hand his share to Bulgarian co-partners.

The Sofia Dnes, commenting on the evacuation of the Jews from Sofia, stated that this measure was the expression of the collective will of the Bulgarian public. The recent police investigations into the political murders had shown, continues the paper, that each time the Jews had had a hand in it; the Jews were the agents of the enemy of the Bulgarian people.

From Poland there have come further reports of self-defence actions by Jews in Krytki, near Bialystok, the Jews defending themselves against a Nazi attack and, after killing several Germans, succeeding in escaping to the woods. In Minsk Mazowiecki, 350 Jews were assembled and 30 of them shot. The others barricaded themselves in a school and fought back. The Germans set the school on fire. Some of the defenders perished in the flames, and others were killed when jumping out of the windows. Nevertheless, large numbers of Jews managed to escape to the forests, especially those on the banks of the River Bug, where between ten and twenty thousand of them are now reported to be hiding.

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung declared: "If they do not cease from their activities, they will one day experience reprisals which will make them realise too late what they have done by their barbarism to high culture and civilisation. The judgment which will then fall upon them will first of all hit those who are responsible—the Jews." Writing of the bombing of Ruhr dams, the same paper stated: "There are still enough Jews who can become victims of reprisals." The secret Polish radio station "S.W.I.T." reported lately that as a reprisal for the bombing of the dams, the Nazis had been "liquidating" the remainder of the ghettoes in Cracow and Stanislawow.

"Jewry is the proved destroyer of the Reich and deserves death," declared the Nazi leader, Dr. Johann von Leers, in a broadcast. "The Reich can be upheld against the Jews only by a bitter and irreconcilable fight against Jewry."

Dr. Ley, the most violent Jew-baiter of them all, speaking in the Cologne area, said that "as far as our relations with the Jews are concerned, it will always be a question of either them or us." "He who attacks Jews must be prepared for anything . . . In full knowledge of these things we meet our destiny; we shall repay two-fold and threefold for every one of their blows."

Dr. Fildermann, former President of the Union of Rumanian Jewish Communities, was arrested by order of Marshal Antonescu. Dr. Fildermann is alleged to have urged the Jews not to pay a special tax of 4,000,000 lei which had been levied on them. He was deported, together with his wife, to a Jewish labour camp in Transdniestria.

Dr. Fildermann earned the Nazis' displeasure in October, 1941, when he protested to Marshal Antonescu against the anti-Semitic measures of the Government. In March, 1942, he was arrested as a hostage.

Miss Henrietta Szold to American troops stationed in the Middle East:

"When I walk along the streets of Jerusalem these days, and my eye is caught—and it is so caught at every turn—by the men in uniform with the insignia of one or another of the nations allied on behalf of the cause of justice and human progress, I feel impelled to stretch out my hand to them and press theirs in fellowship and gratitude."

Rabbi Jacob Goldman, of Rochester, N. Y., has been appointed chaplain to the British Army with the rank of Captain. Chaplain Goldman, who was a student at the Isaac El Chanan Yeshiva, of New York, and at the New York University, served as private secretary to Chief Rabbi Herzog in Jerusalem. He is the first American born rabbi to be designated chaplain to the British Army.

The Palestine Post reports that Arabs of Palestine joined with Jews in a solemn demonstration of Nazi atrocities against European Jewry when a countrywide rally of brethren of the National Grand Lodge of Accepted and Free Masons of Palestine resolved to enable an expression of their grief and protest to the Grand Lodges of England, Scotland, and New York and to President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill. The cable, signed by the Grand Master, Mordecai Caspi, voiced their horror at the debasement of ethical standards and of human conscience expressed in such vile deeds. Those to whom it was addressed were asked to use all the force of their influence to find ways and means of staying the extermination of European Jews and of saving as many as possible.

From England comes what may be the first piece of British war publicity in the Hebrew language. It is a small folder entitled "30 Facts About Britain At War". The folder contains an innovation in punctuation not yet introduced even on Palestine's own Hebrew linotypes.

Under the auspices of the Jewish Soldiers' Welfare Committee of Tel Aviv, a second Central Jewish Library was opened in Cairo, Egypt, which will serve as a supply base of mobile libraries for military units in Egypt and in Libya. The first library of this kind which was established at the Palestine recruit training depot comprises 7,000 volumes, a reading room, and an auditorium for theatrical performances.

Dr. Felix Mandl, chief of one of the two surgical departments of the Hadassah University Hospital at Jerusalem, was invited to represent Palestine at the fourth International Conference of Surgeons of the International College of Surgeons, Chicago, N. New York, at which he read a paper.

Dr. Max Soloveitchik, former Minister for Jewish Affairs in Lithuania, was named Director of the Education Department of the Vaad Leumi (Jewish National Council of Palestine) to succeed the position vacated through the death of Dr. Benzion Mossinsohn.

In the item "Jewish Fishing Hauls Increased", recently published, the total of Jewish fishing hauls for last year was given as 366,000 tons and for the current year as 500,000 tons. The correct figure should be 300 and 200 tons, respectively.

The Chinese thought of it first!

THOUSANDS of years ago, the Chinese used a form of gunpowder—a flaming chemical of defence dumped over battlements upon an invading enemy.

And from this age-old beginning has evolved smokeless powder made from high-proof alcohol. Like the airplane, it has done much to further the progress of mankind—but in evil hands it has meant tyranny and enslavement.

As the tempo of this war for liberty increases and our armed forces in all parts of the world swing to the offensive, more smokeless powder for our shells, bombs, depth charges and torpedoes is a vital necessity.

And because we have vast fields of grain and the facilities to convert them into high-proof alcohol, the United Nations shall have an overwhelming superiority of fire-power to pulverize the enemy into unconditional surrender.

Thus, China's primitive powder of defence has finally developed into the weapon to drive tyranny forever from this earth. In a way, it is the hand of ancient China reaching out in defence of free men everywhere.

Alcohol for War is also used in the manufacture of Synthetic Rubber, Drugs and Medicines, Photographic Film, Lacquers and Varnishes, Dressing Kits, Compasses and other Navigation Instruments, Plastics, Waterproof Glues and many other products. Every Seagram plant in Canada and the United States is engaged 100% in the production of high-proof Alcohol for War.

Roll Call Of Polish Jewish Martyrs

The American Jewish Congress Bulletin says: The last news which came from the liquidated Warsaw ghetto was a list of Jewish writers, artists, scientists, political leaders, scholars, rabbis — all of them martyrs, murdered in cold blood. One may conjecture why these leaders of the Jewish community in Poland were left alive to the very last. The synagogues, the libraries, the schools, had been destroyed at the very start of the occupation. Why were these exponents of the word and deed permitted to witness the gradual extermination of their people and be the very last to join them in death? To one who has memories of many of these martyrs such questions are much too abstract to be asked at the moment. From behind the black-bordered obituary of these names there appear figures of living men, and they step forward as does a brother killed in action from the frame of a picture.

There is Dr. Itzchok Schipper, small, keen-eyed and keen-faced, a product of the culture and social thoughts of Austrian Poland. To Professor Graetz, Jewish history was mainly the history of the Jewish spirit. Dubnow took a step forward toward the secularization of Jewish history. Schipper wrote an economic history of the Jews filling in the gap left by the former two. He was a Zionist-Socialist, a member of the Sejm, but above all, a man of research and study to whom the discovery that the real founder of Hasidism might have been a person other than the legendary Israel Ba-al Shem Tov meant more than a dozen speeches in the Sejm.

There is Shloime Gilbert, novelist and playwright. Many years ago a thin, tubercular youngster in the long coat of a Polish Hasid, walked up five flights of steps and entered a little room where a group of young writers was gathered to plan the next issue of a modest literary magazine. He opened the door and announced: "I, too, am a writer." His short story was published. The long coat disappeared, but the emaciated figure did not change. There he walks with a large piece of shoe leather sticking out of his pocket. "What do you want with that, Shloime?" "A friend of mine gave it to me so I shouldn't have to pay the shoemaker for the leather to repair my shoes." He went on living half starved, writing his novels, until the Nazis extinguished the spark that kept the sickly body alive.

There is Israel Shtern, poet and essayist, dividing his time between the Beth Hamidrash where he studied and the hospital where he was treated for his constant ailments. There is Stupnitzki, short, broad-shouldered, smiling under his heavy moustache, once a student at the University of Berne, later a publicist and editor in Poland. There is Ostrega, the sculptor, small and dynamic, who designed the Ohel over the Peretz grave in the Warsaw cemetery and translated Jewish figures into bronze statues and plaques.

There is a whole line of them, some whose names will live for generations, and others who were quiet, honest toilers in the fields of Jewish journalism, social work, arts, science and religion. And there is also the Jewish Socialist member of the Polish National Council in London, who robbed the Nazis of the chance to murder him together with the other lights of the ghetto and joined his friends by putting an end to his life — Shmuel Zygelboim.

Two years ago he was here among us. He came with a group of Jewish Socialists from Poland and applied himself to a cultural task. The monthly Yiddish Zukunft, which was discontinued a year following the death of its editor, Abraham Liessin, was to be revived, and Shmuel Zygelboim undertook to manage the publication. He traveled throughout the country to revive interest in the magazine. He delivered impassioned speeches. He fought with the new editorial board for permitting an un-orthodox Socialist article to appear. Then he was called to London to join Dr. Schwarzbart in representing Polish Jewry in the Polish parliament-in-exile. He became the liaison between the Jewish underground movement in Poland and the free world. The news of the mass massacres and all the horrible details of the Nazi atrocities in the ghetto reached him first, and he was unable to bear it any longer. In a farewell letter to Premier Sikorski of Poland he wrote that he could not live while his people perished. Having failed to accomplish his life's mission to bring aid to his tormented brothers in Poland he hoped by his death to "shake the passivity of those who yet can save, even at the last moment, the remaining Polish Jews from certain death."

Zygelboim's suicide was an act of despair and protest against a callous world, but he is sanctified in martyrdom with those who died at the hands of the Nazi assassins.

WARSAW MESSAGE APPEALS TO WORLD

who are condemned to death we call to the whole world. It is imperative that powerful retaliation by the United Nations should fall upon the blood-thirsty enemy at once and not in some distant future. Our closest allies must understand the immense responsibility falling upon them through apathy in the face of an unparalleled crime. The heroic rising without precedent in history of the doomed sons of the ghetto should at last awake the conscience of the world.

The message of May 11 confirmed the execution of the members of the Warsaw Jewish Council, says the London Jewish Chronicle, and reported that Engineer Kleyfish, a member of the Bund and described as "one of the pillars of the armed resistance "fell like a hero in the battle.

It added that the resistance of the ghetto continued with but few strongholds holding out. The Jewish fighting organizations were showing grim determination and courage. "Unspeakable cruelties are being committed by the Germans. Many defenders are being burnt alive, thousands were shot, and the others taken to concentration camps. House defences are being overcome after stiff resistance. A few thousand remain in the underground store-houses of the ghetto. Hand-to-hand fighting is going on in the shelters. The Germans are shelling one block after another and setting fire to them. The water supply has been cut off by the police. Those who have fled are being shot when caught.

The message said that the remnants of the Jewish centres in the provinces are being wiped out completely. It expressed amazement that the world was keeping silent in the face of these horrors.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an abettor."

At present writing no statement from official Zionists has appeared in Life Magazine, as promised by that publication, in answer to the pronouncement of Ibn Saud, King of Arabia, in the May 31 issue, in which he dismissed severely the validity of Jewish claims in Palestine. But some such statement is to be expected, and will be reviewed here in due course. The problem of the Jews in Palestine is considered one of the two chief problems of the Arab world, after the war, the other being the federation, or at least a customs union of all the Arab countries, according to Noel F. Busch, editor of Life, who got the drastic statement on Zionism from Ibn Saud and wrote the enlightening article on the monarch. Viewed as the background of the King's pronouncement, the facts in that article indicate the weight of its significance. Part of it is condensed here.

Ibn Saud is the top personage in the Arab world which includes most of North Africa from Morocco to Egypt, and the entire Near East, and is peopled by 30,000,000. He has assembled the biggest Arabian kingdom since Mohammed, 1,300 years ago, and his possession of the Holy Cities, Mecca and Medina, makes him Number One among 220,000,000 world Moslems. His world is shut off from Europeans by religion and geography. Arabia, with its four millions of people, has no cinema and no popular press, and the absence of communications has prevented knowledge about the King from reaching the outside world. Mr. Busch presents him at the age of sixty-three as a practical, business-like, self-made monarch, the most important absolute ruler now alive. He is granite-faced and patriarchal in appearance, six feet, four inches tall, and owns twelve palaces.

Ibn Saud's country has a new practical importance to the world based on sound strategic, economic, and religious grounds. Its location commands two of three sea routes to the Near East, and is thus an essential factor in United Nations plans for supplying Russia and India, as well as the Near East. It contains major filling stations for oil carried to United Nations forces by pipeline or tanker. Mr. Busch says that oil to the post-war world may have economic value greater than its present strategic value. The California Arabian Standard Oil Company a few years ago took out a sixty-year concession to Arabian fields. It is one of the only two foreign companies operating in Arabia, the other being the Saudi Arabian Mining Syndicate Ltd. which has a concession for gold production and in which Ibn Saud holds stock.

The Standard Oil seems to be as welcome as the flowers in May. Its machine shops repair the King's one thousand automobiles, about half of which are trucks, and its oil drillers sink life-giving water wells through the sand as a matter of child's play. Mr. Busch observes that the cordiality between the King and the United States is a projection of the friendliness between the King and the representatives of Standard Oil.

Ibn Saud says that the British are his friends, the Americans are his partners. The Arabs assume that by the presence of General Eisenhower in North Africa the United States is committed to a benevolent interest in Arab affairs. Ibn Saud's benevolent neutrality has been fortunate for the British in the war and the gratitude of the Allies has been shown in gold, grain, and lend-lease vehicles. His revenue comes from Standard Oil, the British Government, and the yearly pilgrimage to Mecca which about 250,000 Moslems undertake. The deficit in this pilgrimage, due to the war, is made up by the other two sources of revenue. There are no budget, no Federal Reserve system, no banks, no paper currency, and the gold sovereign is the medium of exchange. Last winter the United States Department of State sent a mission to Arabia to explore the possibilities of reclamation of land through irrigation so that wheat and vegetables can be grown there.

Mr. Busch says that the King is a military expert and probably knows more about the progress of the war than most of the officials in Washington. Attached to his court are three interpreters of foreign radio news from New York, London, Berlin, and Rome.

About His Majesty and the Palestine question, Mr. Busch says: "Like most Arabs, he feels that the British Government's famous promise during the last war to make a Jewish Home in Palestine was about as realistic as would have been a promise by an Arab Government to found a Jewish Home in Devonshire. Since Jerusalem has always been a Moslem Holy Land as well as a Christian and a Jewish one, and since its population was for centuries preponderantly Arab after the Romans ejected the Jews in the 2nd Century A.D., Arabs wonder why Palestine was not the least suitable spot on the globe for such a venture. While reluctantly prepared to accept the existing state of affairs in Palestine and to admit that the influx of Jews since the last war may in some ways have done good, Arabs are profoundly unsympathetic to the idea of entertaining more Jews and even more so to the idea of extending the Palestinian border eastward after the war."

The direct question which Mr. Busch put to the King of Arabia was: "What is your Majesty's opinion concerning the Palestine problem?" In his answer the King said: "I wish to acquaint you with my opinion so that it can be made known to the friendly American people, so that they may understand the truth of the matter.

"First, I know of nothing that justifies the Jewish claims in Palestine. Centuries before the advent of Mohammed, Palestine belonged to the Jews. But the Romans prevailed over them, killed some and dispersed the rest. No trace of their rule remained. Then the Arabs seized Palestine from the Romans, more than thirteen hundred years ago, and it has remained ever since in the possession of the Moslems. This shows that the Jews have no right to their claim, since all the countries in the world saw the succession of different peoples who conquered them. Those countries became their undisputed homelands. Were we to follow the Jewish theory, it would become necessary for many peoples of the world, including those of Palestine, to move out of the lands wherein they settled.

"Secondly, I am not afraid of the Jews or of the possibility of their having a state or power, either in the land of the Arabs or elsewhere. This is in accordance with what God has revealed unto us through the mouth of His Prophet in His Holy Book. Thus I hold the demands of the Jews upon this land an error; first because it constitutes an injustice against the Arabs, and the Moslems in general; and secondly because it causes dissensions and disturbances between the Moslems and their friends the Allies; and in this I fail to see anything good. Furthermore, if the Jews are impelled to seek a place to live, Europe and America as well as other lands are larger and more fertile than Palestine, and more suitable to their welfare and interests. This would constitute justice, and there is no need to involve the Allies and the Moslems in a problem void of good.

"As to the native Jewish population in Palestine, I suggest that the Arabs agree with their friends the Allies to safeguard the interests of those Jews, provided that the Jews commit no action that might lead to strife and dissension, which would not be in the general interest, and provided the Jews give a guarantee, endorsed by the Allies, that they will not strive to buy Arab property, and would refrain from using their great financial power for that purpose. Such efforts would only bring the people of Palestine loss and injury, and poverty and decay to their doors. Such efforts would inevitably lead to more trouble.

"On the other hand the Arabs would recognize the rights of the Jews and would guarantee to safeguard them."

The above document appeared in English translation, along with a reproduction of a photostatic copy of the Arabic transcript, typed from stenographic notes.

Turning from Life Magazine to "One World," by Wendell L. Willkie, you find an account of how the author spent a crowded day in Jerusalem interviewing Sir Harold MacMichael, Resident High Commissioner for Palestine and Trans-Jordan, and various others including Moshe Shertok, head of the political department of the Jewish Agency; Dr. Arieh Altman, head of the Revisionist Zionists who claim the entire country for the Jews; and Awni Bey Abdul Hadi, Arab lawyer and nationalist leader who claims the whole country for the Arabs. Willkie then went to call on Miss Henrietta Szold, the American-born founder of Hadassah, who is nearing eighty, and told her of his confusion and his anxiety to find the answer for the tangled problem of Palestine. "I asked her," he writes, "if she thought it true that certain foreign powers were deliberately stirring up trouble between the Jew and the Arab to help sustain their own control. She said: 'With a sad heart I must tell you it is true.'" f.f.c

Germany's Inhuman Conduct

A Message To Jews From His Grace, Archbishop Germanos Of Thyateira, Head Of The Greek Orthodox Church In Britain

I deem it my duty as a Christian and a Prelate of the Greek Orthodox Church to raise a voice of protest against the inhuman persecution which Hitler and his satellites have set in motion for the purpose of exterminating the Jewish race both in Germany and in the Axis occupied countries. In doing so, I am following the course of action on this question which the Greek Orthodox clergy have laid down and adhered to in Greece itself, now groaning under the yoke of slavery.

The uprising of the Greek clergy both in Salonica and in Athens had the effect of suspending and thwarting the methods of violence against the Jews which the German authorities wished to enforce in Greece also. And if thousands of hapless Jews were forcibly removed to the place of their extermination from the Bulgarian-occupied districts of Greek Macedonia, and if this was done in the most savage and bestial manner, the responsibility lies with the willing and submissive satellite, Bulgaria, who had first expelled the Greek clergy from those districts, with thousands of Greeks.

Germany's inhuman conduct in this matter must be stigmatised. It is directly opposed to the word of God, Who makes no distinction between the nations. Was it not St. Paul who preached that 'there is neither Jew nor Greek'"!; Who made himself the vigorous champion of the unity of the human race when he said: "God made of one every nation of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth"? Therefore, as members of one and the same body, all men, to whatever race they may belong, are possessors of the same human value, the same human rights.

The theory of racialism, according to which there exist higher and lower races and, in addition, a privileged race entitled to supremacy over the other allegedly inferior races—a theory diametrically opposed to the idea of equality and freedom—was the origin of the whole Hitlerite policy. It was developed by the outstanding theorist of Nazism, Rosenberg, who perceived decadence and pollution in any mingling of the Nordic race (which in his view is now represented in its purest form by the German race) with the races originating in Asia and Africa.

But this fear of a supposed corruption and degeneration of the race does not succeed in concealing a tendency and desire to pillage and confiscate the fortunes of the exterminated Jews, and by every means to strengthen the German race, so that it may attain supremacy in the world.

A great and crying injustice is being committed, in disregard of every right, human or divine, by the deportation and expulsion of the Jews from the countries in which they have been established for hundreds of years and in which they have ever been dutiful and law-abiding citizens. But it is a most dastardly crime that is now being perpetrated in the German-occupied territories, where the ruthless extermination of the Jews in the most inhuman circumstances is being attempted.

It is our firm conviction that the United Nations, who have pledged themselves to the waging of the Armageddon, will before long succeed in crushing Hitlerism by the combined might of their blows, thereby restoring individual and national liberties, and bringing to an end the sufferings of the enslaved peoples and the insane extermination of the Jewish race.

its own green stuffs and for visiting troops.

Wheat grown locally also commands the official market price of $60 per ton, contrasted with the pre-war price of $24, while much more is obtainable on the black market. For example, white Canadian flour which does not reach the market, is obtainable on the black market at $50 a hundred pounds whereas the price was $5 once for the same quantity.
